The other day a New Yorker started across Broadway. He was in the heyday of ambitious, vigorous youth. A puff of wind blew an insignificant, almost invisible atom of dust in one of his eyes. It blinded him. He clasped his hands over his eyes and staggered on, only to be run down and killed by a cable car. That man's death was due to an insignificant trifle, an atom of dust that was barely visible under the microscope. It is thus with health. Men find that they are suffering from a trifling disorder of the digestion. It doesn't amount to anything, they think, and time is precious. They don't stop to correct it, but stagger blindly on and are run down in the heyday of ambitious youth by death.

Neglected indigestion is the first cause of all manner of wasting diseases and all forms of nervous disorders. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures all disorders of the digestion. It invigorates the liver, imparts a keen, hearty appetite and causes the life-giving elements of the food to be perfectly assimilated. It purifies the blood and builds healthy tissue. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder, and nerve tonic. It cures consumption, wasting diseases and all disorders of the nerves.

"I was a sufferer five or six years from indigestion," writes B. F. Holmes, of Gaffney, Spartanburg Co., S. C., "also from sore stomach and constant headache. I then used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets,' which in a few days gave me permanent relief."

"The People's Common Sense Adviser" explains symptoms of ailments common to every family, and suggests remedies. It has several chapters on woman's diseases and weaknesses. An edition in heavy paper covers will be distributed absolutely free. Send the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., 21 one-cent stamps, to pay the cost of mailing only. Cloth binding may be had for 31 stamps.

PROUD OF HIS ENGLISH.

The Emperor of China Catches a Base Pretender.

For some time past the emperor of China has been taking lessons in English, and likes to air his knowledge whenever he gets a chance. The other day Viceroy Liu, of Nanking, recommended to the throne a Taotai named Li, who boasts a "knowledge of foreign affairs," and his majesty at the audience asked the Taotai whether he knew any English. Having been recommended for his "knowledge," Li Taotai had to sustain his reputation, and so replied "Yes," forgetting apparently that his imperial master had studied English and was still studying the language, says the North China News.

Then came the attack. The unlucky Taotai was bombarded with "How do you do?" "Are you well?" "Thank you," "Sit down," "Have you been to England?" and the like, spoken with a rich Manchu brogue, in rapid succession. The poor Taotai was completely bewildered, of course, and instead of seeking for an escape by declaring in tones of respectful admiration his extreme wonder at the imperial eloquence, he began kowtowing on the polished marble floor. His majesty was so disgusted at this display of ignorance on the part of the audience-seeker that he roundly abused in Manchu the now trembling Taotai for daring to come before him "on a borrowed reputation." The unlucky Taotai was then almost driven from the audience-chamber, with the injunction "to keep an English book constantly under his nose for three years, at least, if he wished to succeed at all in that line!"

SCARE THE SONG BIRDS.

Bicycle Has Driven Away Everything But the Sparrows.

"Birds in the park?" said the old South Park policeman, "naw, not now. There used to be lots of them, building nests in every bush and singing on every tree, but nowadays there's nothing but sparrows. Sometimes there's a bird or two that tries to nest, but they don't stay long. The bicycles are too much for them."

"You see, it's like this," he continued to his interested listener, says the Chicago Tribune. "Before the bicyclists got so numerous most of the people in the parks and boulevards stuck pretty well to the roads and walks, and were only around in the daytime. But since the bicycles have brought us such crowds the whole place is entirely overrun with people, who find every shady spot, walk around every bush, and lean up against every tree. Especially they make night into day, and lucky, indeed, is the poor bird which can find a roosting place that is not disturbed by the presence of the omni-

COURSING COYOTES.

They Gave the Dogs All the Run They Wanted.

"Coursing used to be one of our great sports in Nevada in flush times," said an old newspaper man in the San Francisco Post, "but instead of using jack rabbits we had good, able-bodied coyotes, and they can give a dog the race of his life. There was another advantage. We could use one coyote until he got so old and rheumatic that he couldn't run and then make a rug of his hide. It was this way:

"We would catch a good, big coyote in a box trap, take him out on the alkali desert, which was as smooth as a table for 20 miles in every direction, turn him loose and sick the dogs on him. It didn't take long for the coyote to realize that his chances of getting away were very small unless he could find a hole, and he had sense enough to know that holes were scarce in the desert. Then he would recollect the good, safe hole he had just left and commence circling toward it. All we had to do was to sit down and watch the race for about half an hour, till the coyote completed the circle and ran back to the box. Then we closed it, carried him back to town and kept him for another race the next week."

MET IN MIDOCEAN.

Strange Meeting of a Long-Separated Uncle and Nephew.

The story of a meeting in midocean between an uncle and nephew who had not seen each other for years was told by Capt Coombs, of the American bark Essex, which arrived in this port the other day, says the Philadelphia Press. The Essex had on board the captain and crew of the British ship Aeronaut, from Santa Fe, an Argentine Republic port, about 600 miles up the Rio de la Plata.

The Aeronaut was lumber laden, and shortly after leaving the mouth of the river encountered a storm, during which she was dismasted. The helpless vessel shortly afterward sprung a leak, and it was not long before she became water logged. While in this condition the ship Annie Burrill, from Buenos Ayres to New Orleans, fell in with the helpless hulk, and took off her crew. A few days later the Essex was met and the Aeronaut's people were transferred to her. When he stepped on the deck of the Essex Capt. Henry Fancy, of the Aeronaut, thought he recognized the skipper. A closer look convinced him that he was not at fault, and, stepping forward, he said:

"How are you, uncle?"

Capt. Coombs was much surprised, as he had no recollection of ever having seen the speaker. He asked his name and when told that the man he was taking into port was Henry Fancy, his sister's son, he was overjoyed. He had not seen Capt. Fancy since the latter was a small boy.

Currant Jelly.

Place the currants in a preserving kettle over the fire and cook till the juice flows freely; remove, and when cold press out all the juice; return the liquid to the fire and boil without a cover 20 minutes; then measure the liquid; add to every pint of juice one pound of sugar, boil five minutes, then fill into jars or glasses. In case you make several gallons of jelly at once, a good plan is to try half a cupful of the liquid and boil it with half a cup of sugar a few minutes; set it in a cool place; if the jelly, when cold, is firm you may add the sugar to the boiling juice; if not, boil it a little longer, as a large quantity takes longer to boil than a small quantity.—Brooklyn Eagle.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE

is the most dangerous of all human ailments because its approach is unobservable. Its symptoms are common to other diseases, viz., Severe Headache, Backache, Dizziness, Sleeplessness, Blurred Vision, Dyspepsia, etc. Once let it get a firm hold on the system and it is difficult to dislodge. It is caused by inability of the kidneys to filter the Urea from the blood.

Yet it can be

CURED

For over a year I have been troubled with kidney diseas, something like Bright's Disease, so the doctors informed me. They failed to cure me, or in fact do me any good whatever, and I made up my mind I was past cure. About two months, passing Weatherhead's drug store in Cincinnati, I saw a man giving away sample boxes of Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills. One was handed to me and I communced to take them. I found they helped me immediately, after taking three boxes I feel that I am now well. I am past 65, and I must say that I feel better than I have for the past twenty years. They are a wonderful medicine. I believe they will cure in most cases, as three others of my neighbors have tried them with like results. I have taken some pains to tell all my friends and others of their wonderful results

BRYAN ON BIMETALLISM.

Bimetallism means that silver shall stand by the side of gold, and with gold uphold the commerce of the nation. To secure bimetallism you must have law. There are people who imagine that money is superior to law; but, my friends, they} strike silver down by law, and we have as much right to restore silver by law as they had to assassinate it by law. They contracted the currency by law, and by law alone can it be expanded. We have as much right to invoke the law to increase the currency and bring back prosperity as they had to invoke the law and decrease the currency and drive prosperity into the banks and vaults of the money changers.

Now, it used to be sufficient to declare in {favor of free coinage, but we found that people would be on a free coinage platform and then refuse to vote with those who were trying to secure bimetallism, and they would explain that while they were in favor of free coinage they were in favor of unlimited coinage, and it became necessary to add "unlimited coinage." Then people would be elected on a platform of that kind, and refuse to vote with those who favored bimetallism, and explained that while if they had free and unlimited coinage they were not in favor of 16 to 1, and it became necessary to add the ratio. And then people would be elected on a platform declaring for free and unlimited coinage at 16 to 1 and refuse to vote with those who favored bimetallism, and explain that while they favored free coinage and unlimited coinage, and coinage at 16 to 1, they were not in favor of it until other nations helped to do it. And so it became necessary to add to the platform until at last a declaration was secured which is water-tight. When those who favor bimetallism joined in a platform which declared in favor of the immediate restoration of free and unlimited coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1 without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation they declared something which meant something, and nobody has misunderstood the declaration.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

THE TARIFF BILL.

The final vote on the tariff bill in the United States Senate yesterday did not create any marked interest. The time for the roll to be called arrived and the vote was comparatively a formality, as it was generally conceded among the Senators that it would pass by a majority vote. The bill as amended will now be returned to the House, and after the several amendments are read and acted upon, if any are rejected by the House or it refuses to concur in them a Conference Committee will be appointed to meet a similar committee from the Senate and the two will endeavor to adjust differences between the two bodies on the bill. It is believed that the majority in each branch of Congress are pretty thoroughly posted on the program, and it is quite probable that an early agreement will be reached, although there may yet be some delay. The Nation generally will feel relieved to know that this question is nearly solved even though it may be only temporary. The people have to a great extent lost interest in it and believe that it is simply an issue manipulated by the trusts and goldbugs to draw attention from and block as far as possible any consideration of the financial question. After the bill becomes a law, there will be ample opportunity to test its benefits to the masses and the promised prosperity that it is claimed will follow its passage, will be welcomed, but the people have been fooled so many times that they have almost become convinced that the tariff question is about the only available issue that the Republican party has left, and the party manipulators will not let go of it as long as it can be used.

Another heat wave has struck the East-central part of this country. Chicago and many adjoining countries are again undergoing a deadly heat spell such as raged through the East last fall. People are dying by scores, and prostrations are too numerous to occasion much comment. Thirty-one deaths have been reported as due to the intense heat. We can thank Providence that among other things she has blessed this Western region with a comparatively temperate climate.

RELATIONS between the Secretary of State and the Japanese minister have become strained over the Hawaiian annexation treaty. July 1st was regular diplomatic reception day at the State Department, but Minister Hoshi was not among Sherman's callers. It is not improbable that unless Sherman answers Hoshi's note in a satisfactory manner, he will ask Japan to recall him.

The Transmississippi Convention will be held at Salt Lake on July 14th. The purposes of the convention are to bring about closer relations between the States west of the Mississippi. Seven hundred and fifty delegates from the various States have been appointed. Nevada has been alloted fifteen.

The oldest inhabitant declares without hesitation, equivocation or mental reservation that this is the coolest summer he ever saw in Nevada.

TELEGRAPHIC NOTES.

The Senate met yesterday determined that a final vote on the tariff bill should be taken before the day's session closed. There was little interest and the galleries were comparatively empty. Mr. Pettigrew of South Dakota asked that the official papers relating to Japan's adoption of the gold standard be ordered printed.

Lodge of Massachusetts, from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, in a report on Spanish-Cuban matters recited the wrongs and injuries inflicted on August Bolton and Gustave Echelsuit at Santiago de Cuba in 1895, and the unavailing demands of the United States on Spain for indemnity. The report asked the President to take such steps as in his judgment were necessary to secure such indemnity. Mr. Lodge gave notice that he would call up the resolution immediately after the disposition of the tariff bill.

The tariff bill was taken up and its phraseology perfected. Senator Teller spoke for the Silver Republicans and Senator Butler for the Populists. Cries of "vote" were heard and at 4:40 the roll was called and the bill passed by a vote of 38 to 28. In detail it was as follows:

Yeas—Allison, Baker, Burrows, Carter, Clark, Cullom, Davis, Deboe, Elkins, Fairbanks, Foraker, Gallinger, Hale, Hanna, Hawley, Jones of Nevada, Dodge, McBride, McEnery, McMillan, Mantle, Mason, Morrill, Nelson, Penrose, Perkins, Platt of Connecticut, Platt of New York, Pritchard, Proctor, Quay, Sewell, Shoup, Spooner, Warren, Wellington, Wetmore and Wilson—38.

Nays—Bacon, Bate, Berry, Caffery, Cannon, Chilton, Clay, Cockrell, Faulkner, Gray, Harris of Kansas, Jones of Arkansas, Kenney, Lindsay, Mallory, Martin, Mills, Mitchell, Morgan, Pasco, Pettus, Rawlins, Roach, Turner, Turpie, Vest, Walthall and White—28.

The conferees were then appointed, viz: Allison, Aldrich, Burrows, Platt of Connecticut, Jones of Nevada, Jones of Arkansas, Vest and White.

The House adjourned. McMillan of Tenn., tried to bring up the Cuban belligerency resolution, but the Speaker ignored him.

President McKinley called a special meeting of the Cabinet, and after a lengthy discussion it was decided that the President should send a message to Congress recommending legislation for a commission to adjust the currency question. The message is already written and is short. He will ask authority to name nine Commissioners and ask for an appropriation for expenses. He will simply call attention to the necessity of a reform in the currency and national banking laws.

Bryan reached Alameda and Oakland yesterday morning and was met by a large delegation of citizens. He held an informal reception at the Park Hotel. Breakfast was served. In answer to the toast, "W. J. Bryan, the next President of the United States," Mr. Bryan said: "I am not so much interested in who shall be the next President as I am that he will be a man who will not veto the silver bill when it comes before him." At Oakland he was given a rousing reception and an immense meeting was held.

After the passage of the tairff bill and the adjournment of Congress, President McKinley will issue an order about July 20th taking from under the Civil Service regulations the clerks in Custom Houses and Internal Revenue Departments and Districts; also those under Marshals, District Attorneys and Pension Agencies. In Washington many more clerks will be removed from the classified lists. All Government Printing Office employes will be exempted, also those in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. Chiefs of these Departments may also be exempted.

THOSE STEEL CASES.

Judge Cheney's Decision and Order on Demurrer to Complaint.

In the case of the Office Specialty Manufacturing Company vs. Washoe county, Judge Cheney handed down a decision and order on the demurrer to complaint.

After reciting various details concerning the agreement and purchase of the file cases by the Board of Commissioners and the delivery of the same and subsequent payment of $462 30, and the veto of the remaining bills by the Audtior. The character of the cases being specified as four, when in reality they were indivisible without material and irreparable injury, and manufactured in one solid frame. The action of the Board in allowing the full amount of $1,498 60 on May 25, 1896. Also the fact that the last so-called section was ordered five days prior to the arrival of the cases, and the plaintiff by this means pretending to sell four cases when in fact there was but one, and presenting four claims which are now sued for as one. That the case was delivered May 23, 1896, and three days thereafter four bills presented and on the same day allowed by the Board, although the terms of agreement specified the time as thirty days after receipt and examination before payment for the goods.

In substance the pretense was made that four cases were ordered at different times to be paid for in separate amounts, yet the goods arrive five days after the last order is forwarded, notwithstanding all are in one solid frame. Other conditions and details are referred to, and Judge Cheney goes on:

"Under these circumstances shown by plaintiff's complaint, I am unable to perceive how equity or good conscience can be invoked to release the plaintiff from the toils of its pretended, illegal enterprise. Neither honesty, fair dealing nor public morality will be promoted by enabling a person to recover the reasonable value of goods furnished in an attempt to circumvent wise statutory regulations essential for the protection of the public from unlawful acts of officials, when the contract is denied enforcement because of its illegality. To my mind the action, instead of coming within the intent of the equitable rule invoked by plaintiff, is governed by those ancient maxims of the law which delares that 'a right action cannot arise out of fraud.'

"Courts of Justice do not sit to extricate a rogue from the toils; on the contrary it is the policy of common sense and common law to environ a person with all possible perils and to make it apparent that honesty is the best policy.

"The defense, that the claim sued on was not presented within the time allowed by law is well taken. This claim is either the same or a different one from what was first presented. If it is the same, no action can be maintained on it because of the illegality of the contract. If it is a different one, no action can be maintained because it was not presented within six months from the time the goods were delivered or the time when it became due and payable. The demurrer as amended is sustained."

PLUNGED TO DEATH.

A Child Falls One Thousand Feet.

A most thrilling accident occurred at Blair's Park, in Oakland, last Monday morning. A balloon ascension was to be the event of the day, and over 5,000 people had assembled to witness the performance. In the crowd was a little 7-year-old child who had come to the park with some friends for a day's outing. The little fellow became intensely interested in the proceedings and just as the balloon was cut loose, carried away with excitement, rushed from the crowd and caught one of the guy ropes. Before anything could be done the child was dangling from the rope a thousand feet about the ground. For fifteen minutes he hung suspended in mid-air, and then losing his hold was hurled to the earth. The body was picked up a little later in a ploughed field, every bone was broken and life was entirely extinct. The doctors agreed that death must have been instantaneous.

Charged With Insubordination.

Captain P. R. Coryell of the National Guards and First Lieutenant Newton of Battery A., are under arrest by order of Colonel Lord, charged with insubordination an account of refusing to turn out on the Fourth of July. The officers of the company demanded $50 to pay the expense of turning out, which was refused by the committee, and Colonel Lord insisted on his order being obeyed. The officers further declined hence the arrest. A trial by court martial will follow and the matter will be thoroughly aired with a view of determining the authority of the Colonel in such cases.

A Natural Curiosity.

A few days ago, while Joe Ziegler was walking about the park at Steamboat, he noticed a peculiar formation of moss in one of the irrigating ditches, and its size and resemblance to a dog's head attracted a closer investigation. He loosened it from the bank of the ditch and brought it to town. What might be designated as the eyes, ears nose, mouth and forehead are very natural, and the head is about the right size for a large Newfoundland. It is quite a curiosity and can be seen at Henry Riter's Elite.

C. H. Legg, a former resident of Carson, while prospecting in Gold Canyon attempted to pry some dirt off the side of a bank with a crowbar. The bank caved and he fell quite a distance, the end of the crowbar striking him back of the ear causing serious injuries.

Should be Looked After.

For three or four days a gang of hobos have been working the town, and the individuals are not only saucy and persistent, but in three or four instances have been positively insulting to women and children. The officers have been instructed not to make any unnecessary arrests, and they are in a quandry as to just how the order should be interpreted. The hobos seem to have discovered this state of affairs and have become bolder. There is not much nutriment in an officer rounding these fellows up and then having the arrests classed as unnecessary, but if matters go on as they have the past three or four days, some knight of the road will be badly done up, and the cost to the county and town may cover the amount of several arrests.

This matter should receive attention and it should be immediate in view of the army of toughs that are following in the wake of the Christian Endeavor excursions.

Judge Fitzgerald Claims a Legacy.

Judge Fitzgerald of Eureka has commenced suit against the estate of J. S. Capron who left him $100,000. Capron when sick deeded his property to his daughters, but after his recovery he demanded the deeds, but they refused to surrender them. Subsequently he made a will giving Judge Fitzgerald as an old friend $100,000.

The Board of Pardons.

The Board of Pardons by unanimous vote has taken a recess until September 13th, that is the second Monday in the month. The regular session of the Board was to be held next Monday, July 12th. Those having business before the Board will take notice and govern themselves accordingly.

TIZWIN TIPPLING.

A Powerful Liquor Distilled from the Cactus.

The Favorite Beverage of Southwestern Savages—It Soon Knocks Out the Toughest Old Topers.

Tizwin is the intoxicant produced among the most uncivilized Indian tribes that live away up in the mountains, over 200 miles from civilization, on the border land between Arizona and Mexico. It is made from the fruit of the giant cactus of the hot deserts of the southwest territories, known as sahuara fruit. Tizwin is in common use or abuse among the southern Arizona Indian tribes. The fluid has recently been analyzed by the scientific experts sent to the southwest by the Smithsonian institution to study the mode of life of the most primitive savages in the union. It has been found beyond any doubt that the tizwin of the Indians to-day is manufactured in exactly the same way as in the days of the aborigines of this region long before the white men came to these shores from the old world.

Thus another stigma is removed from the long-suffering white man, who has been accused by the Bostonians of teaching his poor red brother the use of fire water. With the facts before us it appears not only probable, but certain, that for years before Columbus discovered America and contracted the disgraceful habit of chewing and smoking tobacco from the natives, the art of painting things red was well known in the quiet streets of the Zuni villages and the avenues of the seven cities of Cibola. It was doubtless, even at that venerable date, no uncommon sight for the good savage housewife to see the partner of her joys and sorrows come reeling to the doorstep making night hideous with drunken song.

The sahuara (Cereus giganteus) is the largest and most remarkable of the cactus family, and is peculiar to Arizona Travelers through the territory see thousands of these giant tree cacti from the car windows. They abound in the hot, sandy wastes. The sahuara blossoms in October and early November, having large, starlike flowers of pure white, with a golden center. In December the fruit is ripe. It is pearshaped, being attached to the limb at its pointed end, and when mature turns a brilliant red and splits open at the top and sides, like a chestnut burr, exposing to view a luscious red morsel of pulp filled with minute black seeds. It resembles strawberry jam. In taste it is slightly like the raspberry, though not so sweet.

As soon as the fruit ripens the squaws and children travel miles over mountain and plain to gather it in large baskets, which they carry on their heads. As these giant cacti are from 10 to 50 feet in height, much of the fruit is out of their reach and is left for the woodpeckers and bluejays, which are extravagantly fond of it, and frequently indulge to such an extent as to become stupefied and unable to fly for a time. The squaws, however, easily gather as much as they want from the smaller plants by means of long poles, with hooks lashed [illegible] ends, with which they pull down [illegible].

The gathered fruit is [illegible] day by day at a common cent[illegible] where it is pressed and the juice col[illegible] large earthen ollas, where [illegible] of water is added. These ollas are stored in a closed, dark room, where a slow fire is kept up for several days until the liquid begins to show a foam on top, which is a sign that it is fermenting. It has then attained the desired intoxicating power, and word passes from mouth to mouth and from village to village

As soon as the welcome news arrives all hands knock off various other kinds of loafing and hasten to the tizwin camp to put in their time around the improvised barroom, stupefying themselves with frequent draughts of the liquor and dancing or fighting between drinks. The squaws and children, who are never allowed to join in the revelry, manage to get their fun out of the affair by climbing to the low roofs of the wickiups and viewing the drunken revels of their lords and masters. Thus the orgie continues night and day until the supply is exhausted; and by this time the passions of the Indians, naturally fierce and cruel, having been inflamed a hundredfold, some one in the crowd utters a war whoop, and they leap on their ponies and are off on a raid against the whites.

The Apache at best is but a devil, but when his blood is heated with tizwin the father of evil himself is a refined gentleman in comparison.

As sahuara fruit ripens only once a year, it is a whole twelve month between drinks with the [illegible] their outbreaks [illegible] the tizwin camp. The old [illegible] still manage to worry along [illegible] have good [illegible] meanwhile [illegible] time and [illegible] every summer. [illegible] recalls many a fierce outbreak of the bloodthirsty Apaches.—St. Louis Globe-

A GLAD PROSPECT.

When Nations Will Wage War in Gentlemanly Way.

Derringer Dan laid down the publication which chance had thrown in his way, and gazed pensively afar. He was so oblivious to his surroundings that an invitation to refreshments passed wholly unnoticed. It was the resentment occasioned by his seeming discourtesy that brought him to earth again. His apologies were profuse.

"It wouldn't of, occurred," he explained, "ef I hadn't of happened to git literary. I've heard it said that literary folks is always absent-minded, an' sence my brain drawed a bead on that article I kin understand what makes 'em so."

"It must have been a powerful fascinatin' yarn," commented Piute Pete.

"'Twasn't no yarn whatsoever," was the reply. "It was the truth."

"What was it about?"

"War."

"I've got no use fur it," exclaimed Three-Finger Sam. "Of course, serciety hez got ter be pre-tected. Gettin' the dots on a man for horse stealin' an' hitchin' him to a tree so's he won't wander around and do it no more is a justifiable proceedin'. But war is promisc'ous an' brutal. This thing o' blazin' away at somebody ye never was even interduced to is, to say the least of it, downright onsociable."

"The trouble is," said Derringer Dan, "that us fellers was born too soon. There ain't any doubt that war, as practiced up to the present time, is a mighty low-down coyote game o' gettin' the drop on a total stranger. But civilization is advancin', an' in the course o' time it'll be jes' as purty a sport as faro bank or draw poker. The scheme, as it now stands, is to see which side kin do the most killin'. An' as soon as one general gits convinced that the other feller kin slay more people than he kin, common sense compels him to lay down and wait fur another deal."

"That's one o' the most scholarly descriptions I ever heard," remarked Broncho Bob, admiringly.

"These here inventors has, accordin' to that article, set theirselves to work to improve the implements of battle, so there won't be no chance of escape when they once git in motion an' no limit to their capacity."

"Seems to me that's goin' ter make war wuss'n ever," observed Rattlesnake Pete.

"That's what I thought. But the article says as how it's goin' to result in makin' war so deadly that nobody'll have anything to do with it."

"It's a fairy story," said Piute Pete, positively. "It's easy enough to whittle a few chips off a lead pencil an' sit down an' figger them things out. But I'll bet anythin' I've got thet there's goin' to be misunderstandin's between different branches of the human race right along to the end o' time."

"No one says there won't be. But they'll be settled in a more gentlemanly way. As fur as I kin make out, the battle of the future will be kerried on in something like this fashion: The opposin' forces will hustle around an' pervide themselves weth all the destructive engines they kin lay hands on."

"Won't there be no soldiers?"

"Certain. Let's 'spose, fur instance, thet the United States has a war weth Spain. The two generals gits together, an' the United States general he puts a certain number of men into the field. Then the Spanish general he has a feller play a tune on the cornet an' sashay out to bring an equal number of men into the field, remarkin', as is customary on such occasions: 'I call yer.' Or, if he hez the grit, he kin bring out a still greater number of men, in which event he will say: 'I see ye an' raise ye,' or words to that effeck. Finally it comes to a show-down, an' the United States general says: 'What ye got?' The Spanish general, who, like as not, has been bluffin', looks worried, an' says: 'I ain't got nothin' but a pair o' 16-inch guns, with cellulose armor on the side.' 'I've got that beat easy,' says the United States general. 'I've got three Hotchkiss guns an' two torpedo boats.' Then the Spanish general merely says: 'That's good,' an' turns over ez much of his army as he happened to risk on the deal, an' goes off to raise another stake. Of course, it'll take some time to regulate the exact value of the hands and readjust the rules so's to make 'em fit the occasions as they come up. But it's goin' to be a mighty fine game, and I only wisht I could sit into it."—Washington Star.
